DETAILED ACTION

1) The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2) Claims 1-6, 8-11, 13, and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Woessner.

Woessner provides a magnetorheological damper comprising: an inner tube (8) with a first end (near 6) and a second end; a magnetorheological piston (7) disposed within and slidably engaging the inner tube; an outer tube (20) surrounding the inner tube, wherein the outer tube is in fluid communication with the inner tube; a valve (6) disposed proximate the first end of the inner tube and providing fluid communication between the tubes; a rod having a first end attached to the piston and having a second end extending outside the inner and outer tubes; an electrode (23) disposed in the rod operatively connected to the piston. Clearly the upper portion of the outer tube of Woessner contains a gas.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3) The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3613

4) Claims 7 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Woessner in view of Wulff et al.

Woessner lacks the teaching of magnetically energizable passages in the piston.

Wulff et al provides a piston with magnetically energizable passages (fig 5a).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have provided the piston of Woessner with the magnetically energizable passages of Wulff in order to provide real time control over the viscosity of the fluid flowing through the piston.

5) Claim 15 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Woessner in view of Jensen et al.

Woessner lacks the specific valve claimed.

Jensen et al provides a valve including first and second discs (82, 54); a valve body (58) having at least one orifice and a spring (74, 90).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have provided the valve of Woessner with the valve as taught by Jensen et al in order to further regulate the fluid flow through the passageways.

Conclusion

6) The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Yoshimura (JP 6-66342, 6-50375), Mihashi, Masamura, Kashima, Nakajima, Kimura et al, Carlson et al, Wantanabe, Forster et al, Weitzenhof et al, Rubel, Petek, Niaura et al, Koh, Rensel et al, Schober et al, and Jolly et al all provide MR damper devices utilizing an inner and outer tube.
